

ABSTRACT

The rapid technology advances and information flow make a large part of Indonesia society more open-minded to globaly technology advances, especially internet. This indirectly brings a phenomenon in the form of a new lifestyle in people who like to use the internet for digital-based shopping or commonly referred to as e-commerce. This study aims to determine the effect of shopping lifestyle, sales promotion and e-service quality on purchasing decisions of Tokopedia users in Jotangan Mojokerto Village. This study uses a quantitative approach with a total sample of 100 Tokopedia users in Jotangan Hamlet. The sampling technique used accidental sampling. The data were collected using a questionnaire that was arranged systematically containing several statements that had met the validity and reliability requirements. Data analysis used multiple linear regression which previously tested the classical assumption and met the requirements. The partial test results show that shopping lifestyle, sales promotion and e-service quality have a significant effect on the purchasing decisions of Tokopedia users and the test results simultaneously show that shopping lifestyle, sales promotion and e-service quality have a significant effect on Tokopedia users purchasing decisions.
